One of the most highly respected citizens and ablest lawyers of Colorado, Judge J. G. Northcott, of Trinidad, is at when barely of age, and, settling in Colorado, practiced law successfully until he was elected to the bench. In the exciting campaign of 1896 he was of that small minority of Colorado Republicans who stood up squarely for McKinley, the majority having gone over to Bryan and

"Our State," said Judge Northcott, "is enjoying good times, and there seems to be no reason to doubt that prosperity will continue. The attorney general of West Virginia, Hon C. W. May, often comes to Washington on matters in which his Commonwealth is involved. He is a young man who has built up an excellent reputation, and his friends say his public career has only begun. Roosevelt's own distination to run again can prevent his renomination to the Presidency. Nobody questions the sincerty of the President, but how is it possible for him to decline that which a united party tenders? No man ever did, no man ever will renounce a nomina-tion that means election to the greatest office in the world. The President will simply be forced to run a second time, because it seems as certain as fate he will be chosen by acclamation in the Republican national convention. The convention will not wait to get any word from him as to his own desires in the matter. It will nominate him and adourn, and the people will do the rest.

Hon, John G. Carlisle, former United States Senator and Secretary of the Treasry under Grover Cleveland, has been Washington for two or three days and is a guest of the New Willard, Mr. Carlisle ame here to confer with the attorney general of West Virginia and other counsel with whom he is associated in defend-ing the cause of West Virginia in the celebrated suit brought against that State y old Virginia, a suit in which the parent 'Our editor," says a Georgia exchange, State claims about $25,009,000 due from the other on account of an indebtedness independent of the country of the country of the midnight accompany that the part of the pa of the territory of Virginia
